

THE VICTORY OF WRONG.

Enough is known of the Presidential election to give a very correct idea of the result on Tuesday.

President Grant has been re-elected by the well-nigh unanimous electoral vote of the Northern States and has doubtless carried Mississippi, North and South Carolina, and probably one or two more of the Southern States.

We cannot say positively that a single State North of Mason's and Dixon's line has cast its vote for Greeley. Even Connecticut and New York have joined the standard of Radicalism, and have added their voices to swell the peans of victory now being chanted to the praise and glory of the great Radical chieftain.

But no shouts of triumph peal from the desolated plains of the once opulent but now down-trodden South. The hearts of her children are sad—their harps are silent and their countenances sorrowful.

The South has cause cause for gloom and despondency. She sees in the recent triumph of the Radical party the extinguishment of the faint hope of peace and prosperity which had begun to illumine the political sky. That hope has been cruelly dissipated, and rayless darkness now enshrouds the Heavens.

The people of the Southern States have offered the hand of reconciliation to the North, but the offer has been spurned. They immolated their prejudices and passions upon the altar of their common country, but the great and noble sacrifice has met with derision, and insult, and provocation.

Radicalism is triumphant, but it is a triumph of falsehood over truth, of might over weakness, of outrage over justice, of hate over magnanimity, of rascality over honesty, of strife over peace, of oppression over innocence, of despotism over civil liberty, of centralization over the Constitution.

We do not worship at the shrine of successful wrong. Therefore we loath Radicalism now with the same disgust that we did before the election. Grant is none the better now than he was before. We have fought against his Administration conscientiously, from a high sense of public duty, and we shall continue to fight against it so long as it tramples down the Constitution and oppresses and degrades the Southern States.

We will not compromise with wrong—however powerful it may be. We will not stoop at the footstool of power nor lick the vile hand that smites our war-wasted South.

We shall still protest against the enormities of Radical rule so long as we have a voice through the public press. We shall still cling to the fortunes of our own people. We shall still denounce their oppressors and persecutors. We shall still battle against wrong, and wickedness and misrule and fraud. We shall still advocate the principles of true Republican Constitutional liberty.

In the language of Father Ryan "with us principle is principle, right is right, yesterday, to-day, to-morrow, forever!"

BEFORE AND AFTER THE ELECTION.

The Asheville Democrat, the Straight-Out organ of O'Connor, published the following in its issue of November the 2nd, three days before the election. The Democrat says the information "speaks for itself." The public can judge whether it speaks the truth or otherwise:

[From the Asheville Democrat, Goldsboro, N. C., Oct. 29.]
Democrats are flocking with Hon. Plato Durham to O'Connor and the new ticket. Greeleyites despondent and surrendering.

The following was received by us in a special telegram from Goldsboro, after the election:

No Straight-out ticket voted at this place to-day.

We might use a favorite saying of Falstaff's about how this world is given to a certain disreputable habit, but we desire to avoid personalities.

MAJ. BAKER P. LEE.

After the withdrawal of negro candidate, Dr. Norton, in the Norfolk Congressional District, of course the election of Platt, Radical, over Maj. Baker P. Lee, was a foregone conclusion, as the Radicals have several thousand majority in that district.

We congratulate Maj. Lee on his able and vigorous canvass, and the enviable reputation he has made. His speeches everywhere were received with the greatest enthusiasm, and were highly praised for their rare eloquence and power. Although fighting against overwhelming odds, the brave heart of the gallant Lee never for a moment quailed nor faltered, but he pressed forward in the fight and achieved a great moral if not a political victory over his unscrupulous foes.

We trust he will soon resume his position on the Norfolk Journal—a position which he severed in order to enter upon the canvass.

The average annual number of murders in Chicago is fourteen.

POSITION OF THE CHARLOTTE DEMOCRAT.

The last Charlotte Democrat reads a lecture to the Radical papers that have been recently assailing Mr. Yates for his bold and manly course in denouncing certain Radical officials.

The Democrat adds:
"We don't exchange with some of the Radical concerns that we learn have been abusing us, but we merely say for the information of others that if any one ever thought we would hesitate to expose incompetent and corrupt judges and dishonest Radical office-holders generally, he may learn his error by reading the Democrat. It Grant is re-elected President we shall take more trouble and time hereafter to expose official rascality than we have heretofore done."

THE HORSE PLAGUE IN RALEIGH.

As announced in our local columns yesterday, the horse malady has reached this City and is now in full blast here. It has attacked the animals in both of our Livery Stables as well as in many private stables, and is rapidly increasing all through this section.

There does not seem to be much excitement among our horse-owners, as the disease as developed here, is in a mild form, and fatal consequences are not anticipated.

MURDER FOR MURDER.

A short time before the election of 1869, Florence Scannel, a notorious ward politician, and at that time an anti-Tammany candidate for assistant alderman in New York, was fatally shot in an affray in the drug shop of Thomas Donoghue. The inquest failed to show who fired the fatal shot. John Scannel, brother of Florence, positively charged it upon Donoghue, who, with witnesses corroborating him, flatly denied it. One night in September, 1870, a disguised man whom Donoghue positively identified as John Scannel, shot him on Third Avenue, near Seventeenth street, inflicting a severe wound. The assassin escaped, and John Scannel could not be found, returning to the city only after Donoghue's recovery. Scannel was held to bail on a charge of felonious assault, but was never brought to trial. Last Saturday about 9:30 p. m., while some 300 persons were assembled at Johnson's betting room, corner of Broadway and Twenty-eighth street, gambling over the result of the coming election, several pistol shots were suddenly heard, and after the consequent panic and confusion was over Donoghue was lying on the floor, bleeding and dead. He was standing at the foot of the steps leading to the street (the room being in the basement), when a man, who is identified as John Scannel, suddenly came up, shot Donoghue in the head, and when Donoghue had fallen, fired four shots at the prostrate body, three of which took effect. The assassin then fled, but was pursued. Captain McElwain, of the Twentieth precinct, who happened to be in the street not far off, joined in the pursuit and succeeded in arresting John Scannel. On the way to the station house the crowd made threats of lynching, but counter threats from Captain McElwain, who displayed his revolver, prevented any act of violence, and he was soon reinforced by Patrolman Monier. An empty pistol was found on Scannel, and a navy revolver with five chambers empty was found in Fifth avenue, where he had passed in his flight.—Newark Journal.

Alleged Wastage in the Currency.
General Spinner, United States Treasurer, and Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Richardson, have discovered a method whereby they believe $18,000,000 additional currency could be issued without causing inflation beyond the limit now authorized by law. General Spinner estimates roughly that the waste of currency since its first issue, by reasons of losses by fire and other destructive causes, certainly reaches the sum of $15,000,000, and probably eighteen to twenty millions.

The fire at Chicago was deemed a very important agent of destruction, and large amounts of the first shabby issue of fractional currency were worn and mutilated beyond redemption. A considerable amount of compound interest notes long since due and redeemable, but yet outstanding, will probably never be presented for redemption. The idea thus presented will be brought before Congress soon after its next meeting, and pushed with the hope that this alleged wastage will be made good by that body in that amount of currency the Secretary of the Treasurer has authority to issue.

Stanley, the Livingstone explorer, who was lately honored with a public reception by the ancient guild of Turners, of London, in the course of his reply to addresses made to him on that occasion, said:

"It took seven months to reach Ujiji; now I could reach it in four months. (Cheers.) I have studied the nature of the country and its inhabitants fairly well, and I cannot see why a well-organized expedition might not start from the East African coast and arrive in four months in view of the Tanganyika. (Cheers.) Herein I recognize the utility of my work, as well as that of Burton and Speke. (Cheers.) It is indeed available to commerce and to trade; and it is in the hands of the moneyed men to take advantage of the explorer's labors, not only to obtain a pecuniary profit from trade enterprise, but to obtain the acknowledgements of civilized nations for reflecting the dazzling light of civilization upon the poor benighted savages of Africa and bringing them within the pale of our society. (Cheers.)"

A HINT TO HORSE OWNERS.—Mr. Murray Closson, of Gardner, Me., writes in regard to the prevailing horse distemper, expressing the opinion that the feeding of so much corn to horses is the cause of the trouble, and that the heat engendered in the blood makes the animal keenly susceptible to the atmospheric changes. The evil is of long standing, and the present appears to be a fit time to call attention to it.

VALUABLE PROPERTY FOR SALE.

I offer for sale my plantation in Greene county, N. C., known by name containing two thousand acres, about thirteen hundred cleared. It is well adapted to corn and grain, but particularly to cotton.

STREETER PLACE,

The soil is of a nature to stand wet or dry weather.

This place is three miles from Marlboro, four from Newtown, eight from Snow Hill, twelve from Greenville, with a large and commodious dwelling newly fitted up, and all necessary outbuildings, in new and good order, convenient to the place.

A twenty-horse power engine to gin-house, saw, track, &c., two grist mills, shingle mill, and a large well of water in all the land. Excellent neighborhood, churches, good schools convenient, a young orchard, and every variety of choice fruit, and a small vineyard.

Lands not in cultivation are well timbered with oak, hickory, and pine, convenient for fencing. No heavy ditching, while the very best shell marl, with other facilities for manuring is in the land, and on all parts of the plantation.

All my Mules, Corn, Fodder, Farming implements can be bought at a low price. Should more than one person wish to buy the land it can be divided to suit purchasers.

Gentlemen desirous of such property can find a better cotton farm in the State, and the undersigned proposes to sell solely because he wishes to give up business and live a more quiet life.

Those wishing to buy can come and examine my plantation for themselves or address me.

STATE MATTERS.

No eastern mail last night, and hence the scarcity of fresh news to-day in this column.

COL. LEAK, of Rockingham, is President of the Council of Temperance in that county.

THE New Hanover Superior court adjourned on Saturday last, without finding a true bill against the Journal. What will Cantwell and Russell do next?

We learn from the Charlotte Observer that the receipts of cotton at that market during the month of October amounted to 5,100 bales. This is ahead of the receipts of any previous year at that point.

THE Roanoke News gives the following marriages at Weldon last Thursday, the first two on the grounds, the last at the Emory house, at night: Miss Ella Towns to Mr. Jno. Clark; Miss Mattie A. Kiker to Mr. A. S. Johnston, and Miss Mary Lively to Mr. Jas. Lamb.

THE Charlotte Observer of November 3rd says: About 10 o'clock last night the city was alarmed by the cry of fire, caused by a kerosene lamp bursting in one of the show windows of J. K. Purefoy's book store, no damage being done, the destruction of the glass window and a few newspapers contained in it.

THE Rev. James C. Hiden, Pastor of the Baptist church at Wilmington, is a working man. The Biblical Recorder says that during the last 12 months he has preached 143 sermons, delivered 133 other addresses, and made 1,106 visits. What wonderful work for one year!

THE Charlotte Democrat says that Master Robert Samuel Collins, only 12 years of age, son of Mr. J. S. Collins, of Mecklenburg county, picked during the present cotton picking season, two hundred and eleven pounds of cotton in one day. That is the best picking we have yet heard of.

THE Charlotte Observer tells the following serious joke as original:

"Good morning! What do you know about farming?" said a smiling Government official, in a taunting way, to a gloomy Geely, just after the Radical Triumph in Pennsylvania and Ohio.

"What do you know about cheating?" was the prompt and grim reply of our friend, accompanied by a sardonic grin.

The Government official, immediately proceeded to show what he knew about crowd-fishing. There was thunder on that Greeleyite's brow, lightning in his eye, and a big stick in his hand.

THE Biblical Recorder thus describes the Baptist Church at Wilmington, which is built of elegant pressed brick and covered with black slate: "The carpeted court extends across the end and receives the people going in, or out, with its ample doors which are so arranged as to avoid confusion or delay. There is a door at each of the four aisles. The benches seem to rest the whole body. The inside is finished with pine, oiled and varnished; the pulpit and all the wood in its vicinity being made of curled pine, the handsomest wood in the world. No other house on the globe contains so much of that beautiful wood. It surpasses any exhibited at our Fairs."

Comfort for Men who want to leave North Carolina.

Two young men of Catawba county, N. C., John and James Mallard, were not satisfied with their native State, and went out West to Montana Territory to try their fortunes. There are now satisfied and want to get back home. They write about the "new-country" as follows:

"We have been out here ever since the 16th of May, from that time up to the 1st of August we had very cold weather with a heavy snow storm in July. During the month of August the days were pleasant, something like the days of March and April in North Carolina; but the nights were cool and some of them frosty and the weather of this month so far has been colder than that of August; one night last week was freezing."

The farms are situated along the creeks and rivers; the soil of a dark mud like character, the production of which is small grain, such as wheat, oats, barely and Irish potatoes; but owing to the short season this year the small grain crops have not had time to mature before it had to be cut. The average yield of wheat per acre is from thirty four to forty bushels; and the hiring expenses are $50 and $60 per month during the summer season; and the days are long enough to enable them (the farmers) to work 15 and 18 hours. That only gives them about six hours to rest and sleep in. It requires a great deal of capital for a man to farm successfully here.

I heard one of the oldest farmers in Montana say the other day, that he hadn't made any money off his farm; and it had not been for his business outside his farm he wouldn't more than make a living. There is more money made off of stock than anything else; but they are so dear, a poor man can't afford to buy much of a start. The price of good milk cows are from $75 to $200, and inferior stock can be bought for $50 and $60. Butter is worth 50 cents during the summer, and in the latter part of winter and first of spring it is worth from 75 cents to $1.25. Hogs are very scarce. Pigs two weeks $2.50 and $3. The most important thing for a man to consider is this: that whilst you can get good wages, $50 and $60 dollars per month during the summer; in the winter it so cold that not more than one employment; and it takes pretty near all they can make in summer to board them in winter. During the winter you can see men going around offering to work for their board.

The society generally is bad; no young ladies to associate with. We haven't had the pleasure of a lady's company since we left good old North Carolina. We don't expect to remain out here very long before we return home; for we can live better and make more money raising wheat in North Carolina, than we can get here. Corn meal is worth 75¢ per bushel. These seasons are too short to raise it here. — Charlotte Democrat.

Communicated.

HALEPAK, N. C., Nov. 5th, '72.

Editors: I am happy in being at liberty to enclose to you for publication the following communication which in a small space gives an excellent description of the recent Fair of the Roanoke and Tar River Agricultural Society. As I am one of those how-ever who do homage to "bright eyes, and that sort of thing," I must protest against the slightest allusion of "lady visitors," thereto, especially as I know that if all the political tributes which have been paid to her own "bright eyes" were published they would make a good sized volume.

NOVEMBER 4th, 1872.

The "Weldon Fair" of 1872, really deserves to be called a beautiful Fair. The weather, particularly on Friday was lovely, the atmosphere clear and soft with the mellow light of autumn, while the sun shone down kindly to correct the chilliness of November. The attendance was large from first to last. On Thursday and Friday, the Hall and balconies were crowded to their utmost capacity, and by a most appreciative and orderly concourse. The articles exhibited in Floral Hall were of the finest order; they were not so numerous as at the last year's Fair, but no one could fail to notice the very decided improvement. The pickles, preserves, jellies, bread, soap, &c., were such as to draw criticism. The specimens of needlework, handiwork and millinery were elegant. The bed-quilts, so numerous, rich and excellent that no housekeeper could look upon them without breaking the tenth commandment. There was a splendid display of jewelry by Messrs. Young, Freeman, and others. Two elegant Pianos and a number of fine paintings, granteams, japonicas and other flowers. The agricultural department was excellent; several stalks of cotton were exhibited, so well grown and fully bolted that I heard a darkie exclaim with the utmost glee, "If all de cot on was like dat, folks wouldnt mind pickin'." The leather, tanned deer and lamb skins, were perfect specimens of their kind, and the big pumpkin reminded me of Cinderella's chariot. The display of honey and bees at work, was beautiful. The honey looked the pure extract of lilies and roses, while the bees seemed fresh from a parterre of flowers. The buggies and carriages were most inviting and enough to awaken a desire for a turnout in the breasts of the least ambitious of show. The machinery, horses, stock and poultry were all fine, and, indeed, there was not a single department that did not reflect credit up on the managers and contributors. Weldon has every right to be proud of it, and the Fair, and the people should redouble their efforts; it is already pronounced by many to be the best in the State. The other points have superior advantages and conveniences for collecting material. The great number of beautiful ladies present was remarked by all, and it is doubtful if some young gentlemen in attendance saw anything but the "fair," and if asked what sort of a Fair it was, suppose will say it was a blue-eyed "fair," or a black-eyed "fair," or some stupid thing of the kind, but every one knows a young man in love is not fit for anything but heaven or matrimony. There was a swing upon the grounds that seemed to afford the colored people particular delight, and it was like an oriental picture to see them decked out in gay colors swaying up and down, the brightly and richly colored clouds forming a background. The Fair was concluded by a tournament and elegant ball given at the new Emory House. The occasion will be remembered by all with pleasure. Scarcely a lifetime does the most inveterate frequenter of festive scenes see so many beautiful women and gallant men. Without "going off" into any rhapsodies about "bright-eyes" and that sort of thing, the writer has never seen a handsomer, more elegantly dressed, courteous and agreeable company that filled the ball-room at the Emory House on Friday evening. The supper which was served up at exactly the right time, was beautifully arranged, and all that appetite could desire.

LADY VISITOR.

THE Indiana Murder—The Darkest of Murders Mysteries.

Henry H. Armstrong, a well-known citizen of this place, and one of the proprietors of the Madison marine railway, came to his death about eleven o'clock last night, under circumstances that rivet in mystery the celebrated Nathan murder case of New York. The evidence before the coroner's jury discloses the following facts: Mr. Armstrong had not been living amicably with his wife for some time past. During the last two weeks he has been at New Albany, and not long ago his partner in this city, H. Clay Jones, received a letter from him, asking for information regarding his family. Mr. Jones informed him that his wife was selling off and preparing to move to New Orleans.

Mr. Armstrong unexpectedly returned home last night, and went to his wife's room upstairs, where, Mrs. Armstrong says, he beat her, abused her in every manner, and finally dragged her down stairs. At the foot of the stairs she screamed, and he released her. She went up stairs immediately, crying, into a room occupied by her sister and her two daughters, when presently they heard a pistol shot, the daughters remarking it, but no further attention was paid to it. Mrs. Armstrong then wanted her sister to go down stairs with her while she fastened the door through which her husband had gone out, and, as she supposed, had left open. Mrs. Armstrong called Andrew McManaman, who occupies the house next door, to come. Mr. McManaman answered the summons, and coming into the yard, found the body of Mr. Armstrong lying across the walk, with a bullet hole just at the corner of the left eye.

Upon examining the body, the forehead was found to be covered with bruises, and one of his hands was somewhat cut and torn. These injuries, Dr. Collins testified, from their appearance had been inflicted immediately before death, showing that the deceased had been engaged in a violent struggle. In reference to the probability being self-inflicted, witness observed that there was but a single wound that suited the case. To inflict the wound himself, Mr. Armstrong would have been obliged to use the left hand, and hold the pistol in a very unnatural manner. In addition to this, were the wound self-inflicted, powder marks would have been found on his face, and the weapon on or near the spot, neither of which facts were the case.

The most mysterious part of the affair is how Mr. Armstrong got in the house. That he was inside is proved by the fact that the body was found without boots, and the boots were found in the parlor. Mr. McManaman states that when he arrived all the doors were fast. Mrs. Armstrong says that she thought he had entered through the cellar, but the jury, after examining the premises, think he did not. That the case is one of murder, and not one of suicide, there can be no reasonable doubt. — Madison Ind., Courier, Oct. 18.

THE LATEST IN SUICIDE.—The latest novelty in suicides comes from Cleveland, O., where an individual who had drawn a blank in a lottery went to his death after the following unique and elaborate preparations: He first procured a loaded revolver and connected it with clock-work, so that it should be fired off at a certain time. He then got into bed, and, after placing the pistol behind his ear, took a dose of chloroform. Under the influence of the narcotic he then went asleep. At the given time the clock work pressed the trigger, discharging the pistol and launching the slumberer into eternity. This device is an accession to the plain self shootings and hangings of ordinary suicide, and in its mechanical merits seems nearer, if not quieter, than the guillotine.

Maj. A. Hamilton Polk, son of the late Gen. Leonidas Polk, died at Hartford, Conn., on the 18th ult. The New Orleans Picayune, in announcing his death, says: "The deceased was nearly forty years old, and possessed many of the qualities that distinguished his eminent father. During the war he held the rank of Major of Artillery. He married, a few years before the war, a daughter of a prominent citizen of Hartford, Ct. Bishop Polk had but two sons; and the survivor, we learn, resides in Memphis, where he is engaged in the commission business." Maj. Polk was a citizen of Asheville, N. C., where he was held in the highest esteem.

The Pope thinks he will live until 1873.

THE Jewish Chronicle says: "A society of atheists has been formed at Venice. They recently sent an address of congratulation to King Victor Emmanuel on the escape of his son and daughter-in-law from association. Oddly enough, forgetting they were atheists, they thanked Divine Providence for the miraculous escape, &c."

THE OLD BARN.

Rickety, old and crazy door:
Shingles, lacking some door:
Bad in the upper story:
Wanting boards in the floor:
Beams strong thick with cobwebs,
Ridge-pole yellow and gray,
Hanging in helpless innocence
Over the mow of hay.

How the winds turned around it—
Winds of a stormy day:
Scattering the fragments hay seed,
Whisking the straws away:
Streaming in at the cracks,
Spreading the clover smell,
Changing the dark old granary
Into a flowery dell.

O, how I loved the shadows
That clung to the silent roof,
Day dreams with the quiet,
Many a glittering word,
I climbed to the highest rafters,
And watched the swallows at play,
Admired the knots in the boarding,
And rolled in the billows of hay.

Palace of king couldn't match it,
The Valdeia Jew's charm
When placed in my memory's balance,
Beside the old gray barn!
And I'd rather see the clover,
Piled in the barn's roomy mow,
Than sit in the breath of the highlands,
Poured from Appennine brow!
